Anna Hall
Director Big Science Sweden

Dear Big Science friends,

We are now summing up the spring in preparation for the summer vacation. Thank you all for joining us virtually in our different workshops, meetings, breakfast seminars and other events during this particular spring. We have all been forced to do things in different ways, and I am sure something good will come out of this.

The Big Science Sweden team is planning the summer, and of course we will always have staff in place for the Big Science Support on Wednesdays. Do not hesitate to contact us with any of your questions.

The autumn programme is taking shape, and we look forward to meeting you again, both virtually and physically. The first event is on 3 September, when we have invited two key persons from CERN to Big Science Morning. We are looking forward to learning about procurement needs for the Large Hadron Collider and the Atlas experiment, and welcome Isabel Bejar Alonso, HL-LHC Technical Coordinator and physicist, and Professor Richard Brenner. This will be followed by a focused technical workshop on 10 September, where the Ångström and Tandem laboratories in Uppsala will participate and share knowledge about innovative manufacturing methods in complex materials.

Other topics at our events will be tech transfer, remote handling, and Big Science at Lund University. Due to the postponed BSBF conference (now scheduled for September 2021), we have decided to host a Big Science Sweden Conference in Lund on 24 November. You are most welcome!

Have a wonderful summer!

Warm and sunny regards
